

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Techniques for identifying a business organization transformation opportunity provide a business with a mechanism for attaining significant cost savings through outsourcing. The techniques include receiving a plurality of business organization data inputs, and analyzing at least one of the business organization data inputs in accordance with at least one industry threshold. A business organization transformation opportunity scenario may be modeled based on the analysis. Further implementations may include providing a survey for use in receiving at least one of the plurality of business organization data inputs, and providing a savings estimate for the business organization if the modeled transformation scenario were to be adopted by the business organization.
